

Our Stories

10th of April,
2018

We told our first story without pictures:

Jack, the Angry Giant

Once there was an angry giant called
Jack who was also very brave.

Everyday he sat and waited for someone to come and fight him.

Until one day, he got so bored he fell asleep....

A little boy came by and saw the sleeping giant.

He got very worried and thought that if the giant stayed asleep he might die! First he wondered if he could get the giant to go to the hospital. But the giant was much too big. He'd never fit.

So the little boy decided to tickle the giant awake. He tickled him and tickled him and tickled him, until finally.....

The Giant woke. And laughed and laughed and laughed!

Ever since that day, Jack doesn't wait
for someone to come and fight him any more.

He has a good friend who comes and plays with him instead.

The End.

Tínkí and Her Little Brother

In the woods lived a mischievous fairy called Tinkí.

Everyday she played 'Flying Tigger'
with her little brother, flitting in and out of the trees and bushes.

But one day, Tinkí lost sight of her little brother. She couldn't see him anywhere.

She flew up and down and around and sidewards. But she couldn't find him

Tínkí could hear his voice calling:

“Tínkí! Help! I’m stuck!!!”

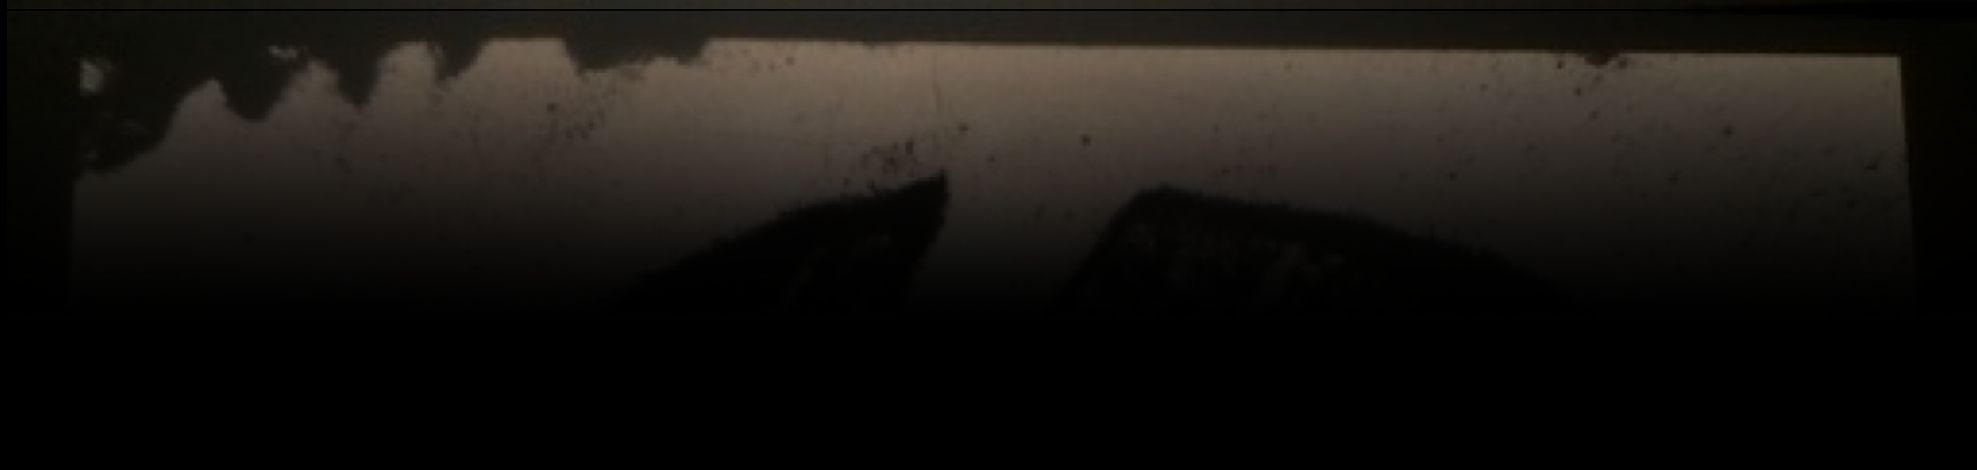

‘Right,’ thought Tínkí. ‘I need to find a way to get higher up. My wings are tired.’

So Tinki took a sturdy leaf and made some clever changes to it.

She cut wings into so it could glide and she attached a daisy flower to the front as a propeller.

Now, she had an aeroplane!

Tinkí flew high above the bushes (well, high for a little fairy) and looked around for her little brother. Following his voice, she found him.

He was stuck in the mud on the banks
of a slow flowing river.

His wings were muddy too! That's why he couldn't fly. But that wasn't the worst thing.

The worst thing was the crocodile hungrily turning towards him...

Tínkí used her leaf-daisy-propeller-plane to roar down towards her little brother.

She scooped him up out of the mud,
just in time!

The crocodile had already opened its great jaws, ready to gobble him up.
Tínkí was just in time.

From that day on, Tinkí and her little brother didn't play 'Flying Tíggý' anymore. Instead, they flew around in Tinkí's plane, exploring the woods and rescuing people.

The End.

The Fastest Cheetah in Africa

In Africa prowled the fastest cheetah who ever lived.

Cheetahs are the fastest land mammals
and this cheetah was faster than all of them.

So he was very fast indeed...

Like all cheetahs, he hunted gazelles
for his food.

Gazelles can be pretty fast too, but they were no match for this cheetah.

In fact the cheetah was so fast, and so ferocious, that eventually there was only one gazelle left, living in the wild.

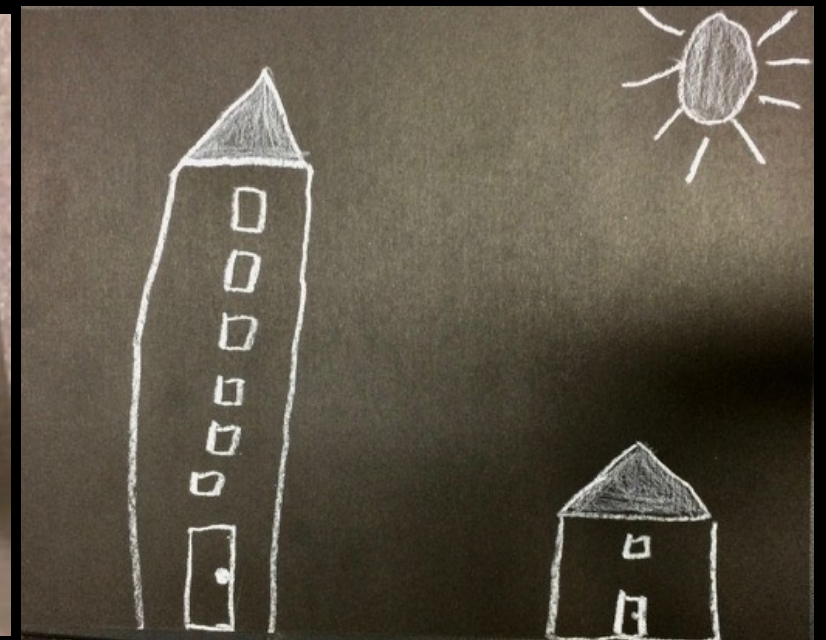

It was rescued and put in a zoo with other gazelles.

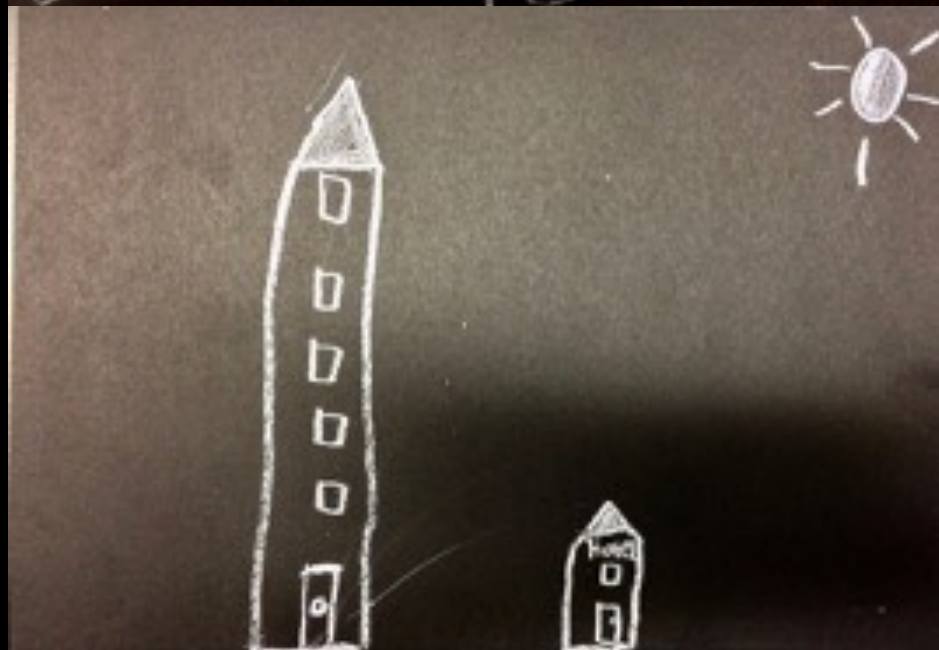

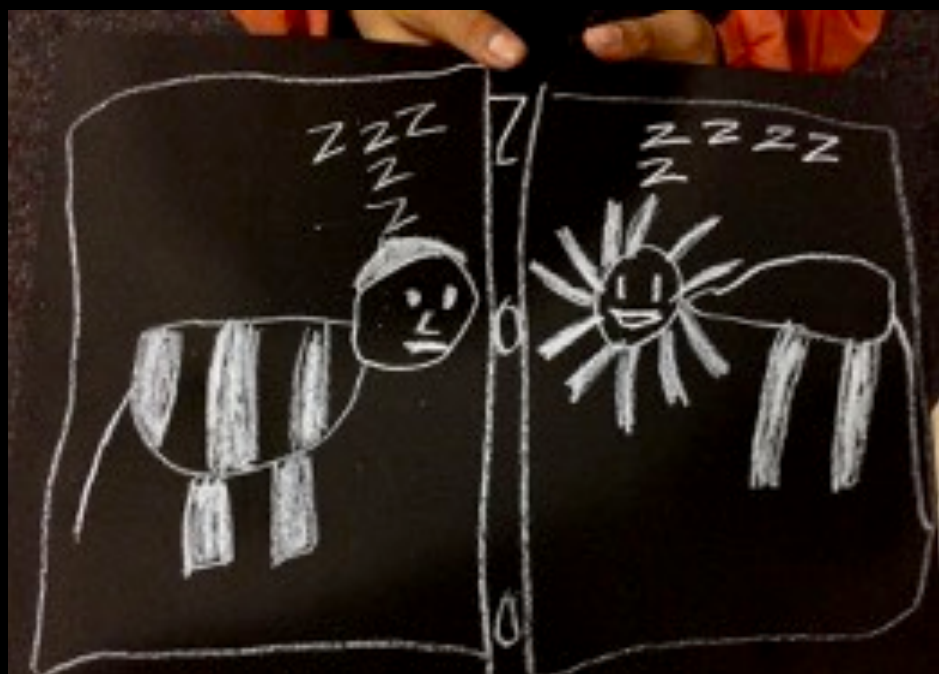

In the meantime, the cheetah had died of hunger.

Eventually, all the gazelles were released and were able to live in the wild again.

The End.

And here are some of our own illustrations of our individual stories:

frog.sand.glass